SUPERVISORS MEET S. F. JAIL COMMITTEE IN SPECIAL SESSION

Six Proposed Sites Submitted; Pillar Point And Francesco Property Eliminated By S. M. County Board

Six proposed sites for San Francisco's new jail in San Mateo county were submitted to the San Mateo county board of supervisors by the joint committee on jail and public buildings of San Francisco at a conference held in the supervisors chambers in this city yesterday morning.

The six suggested sites are as follows:

1. Francesco property, near Salada Beach.
2. Pillar Point.
3. Casanelli property (old Johnson ranch) two miles south of Half Moon Bay.
4. Balanosi property(former John Meyn ranch) at Lobitos.
5. Mid State Oil Co. property, near Purissima.
6. Driver property at San Gregorio.

The list of proposed sites were submitted by Supervisor Warren Shannon, chairman of the San Francisco committee, who explained that any of the above sites objected to by the San Mateo county board would be eliminated.

Supervisor Hickey objected to the Francesco property site on account of its proximinity to San Francisco and he also opposed the Pillar Point site. Chairman Francis of Half Moon Bay also opposed the latter site, as did also Guy R. Smith, civic leader of Moss Beach. Attorney Jos. J. Bullock of Redwood City appeared in the interests of the owners of this property and argued that it was not within the province of the San Mateo county board to decide on any site for the jail, this being up to the San Francisco committee.

Miss Eleanor L. Falvey of the law firm of Ross & Ross, appeared in the interests of A. Patroni, who is also opposing the Pillar Point site.

Supervisor Shannon explained that it was the desire of the committee to eliminate at this time any sites that might be objected to, so that the committee would be aided in its efforts to decide upon one site to be later submitted to the San Mateo county board.

Supervisor John Poole of Redwood City took occasion during the conference yesterday to say his mind on the newspaper articles appearing several weeks ago reflecting on the honesty and integrity of the supervisors of the two counties.

Supervisor Poole said: "As far as I am concerned I am not going to pick out a jail for San Francisco. The committee has had two months in which to decide upon a site and should know by this time where it wants to build the jail. Personally, I object to the insinuating articles that appeared in the San Francisco newspapers, and while I do not think that the San Francisco supervisors had anything to do with it, I do feel that at least they could have seen that the statements were retracted or that a letter of explanation was sent to our board."

Supervisor Shannon said it was not the desire of the committee to ask the San Mateo county board to help make the selection of the jail site, but merely to get their suggestions, so that time would be saved in having undersirable sites eliminated.

"We regret very much what appeared in the newspapers," said Supervisor Shannon, but we were not responsible for the articles and had no way of securing a retraction. It is foolish to think that there could be my colusion between the two boards."

Supervisor Hickey recalled the very cordial relations that have existed between the two boards in recent years and hoped that nothing would occur that would disrupt these relations. "Personally, I do not think there was very much merit to the press articles; they were just made out of wholecloth."

Supervisor Frank McGowan of the visiting committee said he could not agree with Supervisor Poole that the San Francisco board should have written to the San Mateo county board. "If we were not guilty, then there was nothing to write about," he declared. Our committee and the San Francisco board is being cirticized very severely over the delay in the selection of the new jail site and that is why we are anxious to get an expression from your board today, so that we can start action as soon as possible." said Supervisor McGowan.

Representatives of the owners of several of the proposed sites under consideration were present at the meeting yesterday and were given an opportunity to be heard.

Following the conference that lasted fully an hour, Supervisor Hickey said he was satisfied with the four sites south of Half Moon Bay, and Chairman Francis said he did not feel that there would be any objections to any of the four sites by people of the coastside, who were the most directly interested. No objections to these four sites were voiced by Supervisor Brown or Poole. Dr. C. V. Thompson, the fifth member of the board, was not present at the conference, being confined to a hospital in San Francisco undergoing an operation.

It was clearly pointed out by Chairman Francis, however, that the San Francisco committee must reach its own decision as to the proposed jail site before presenting its application for a permit to erect the jail in San Mateo county to the board here. A regular hearing will then be held and the people of the county given an opportunity to be heard in the matter.

Supervisor Shannon said at the close of the meeting that he was satisfied the committee would be ready to reach a decision and submit an application to the San Mateo county board within a very short time.

BOY DIES FROM FIRE INJURIES

Services Today for Youth Injured in Fire at Towne Garage

Davis Litz, 13 year-old school boy, who was badly burned in the fire which occurred at the Towne Garage last week, died from the results of his burns Wednesday afternoon at the Mills Memorial hospital. The boy had suffered first and second degree burns over most of his body, and in his weakened condition, contracted pneumonia, which resulted in his death.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the parlors of Layng & Tinney, and will be conducted by Rev. C. H. Gatchell, pastor of the First Baptist Church of this city. Interment will be in Alta Mesa cemetery.

Davis was the son of Mr. and David Litz, 546 Roosevelt avenue, and was a pupil in the 8th grade of the McKinley School. In addition to his parents he is survived by a brother, Orval W. Litz, and two sisters, Mrs. Clarabelle Lagomarsino, and Evelyn Litz. He was born in New Mexico.

The accident occured when a fire started in gasoline which was being used to clean the floor of the garage, and the boy was trapped in the blaze. He was given first aid treatment by Dr. J. N. Blood and then taken to the Mills hospital, where his condition appeared to improve for a time, but he rapidly declined during the last day or two of his life.

Jockey Killed During Races At San Bruno

Young Rider Fatally Hurt When Thrown as Horse Bolts for Gate

The racing season at Tanforan, which closes tomorrow, saw its first fatality Wednesday afternoon in the last race of the day. Felix Roberts, 16, apprentice jockey, was thrown from his mount and down a 30 foot embankment, sustaining a broken neck which resulted in his death a short time later.

Roberts was riding Laumaia, an Hawiian bred gelding 4-year old. The horse was leading the field but bolted for the gate. The jockey tried to swerve the plunging horse and sawed on the lines, but without effect. The horse dashed madly, but stopped with a suddenness which threw the youthful rider completely over his head and down the embankment where he struck on a waterwagon from which he slumped limply to the ground.

He was taken to the club house where he died within a few minutes. Tom Hunt, western turf man, picked Roberts up at his home in Winnipeg last summer and was training him as a jockey. He had ridden at Agua Caliente, Tulsa and Kansas City.

He had the rare record of having won the first race in which he was entered as a jockey and had received congratulations from leading race officials on each of the tracks where he has appeared.

Girls Working on May Fete Costumes

Costuming for the annual dancing May fete, to be presented May 9 by the S. G. S. and Mrs. Genevieve Robertson's dancing classes, has been started. The fete will be held on the Sequoia football field, and approximately 79 girls will take part in it.

This year the festial will be carried out in the Norse theme of why we have spring. In previous years it has had a Greek theme.

With approximately 400 people attending last year, $125 was cleared, the money being used to pay S. G. S. bills. This year the money will be used to buy new curtains for the girls' dancing studio.

Admission prices to be charged are 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students. Ester Johnsson is in charge of the ticket sale.

Redwood City Shows Only Gain In Building

Redwood City was the only San Mateo county city listed in the S. W. Straus national building survey which made a gain in building permits last month over March of 1930.

Tabulations released today show Redwood City totaled $125,735 last month as against $60,750 for March a year ago.

San Mateo figures were $74,722 for March this year and $176,550 for March of last year. Burlingame totals were $51,200 for March 1931, as against $160,666 for March, 1930.

Buliding permits in 568 representative cities throughout the United States show a decline last month of 18 per cent under totals for March of 1930. In twenty-five leading cities permits for March of this year were 13 per cent over March, 1930, and 55 per cent above those of February, this year.

Local Team To Meet Darcy's

The Redwood City Baseball Club in the Peninsula League will be the visiting team Sunday, journeying to San Mateo to meet the Darcy's of that city. The Darcys were defeated Sunday in their first game of the league, while the locals have suffered two defeats, losing the opening game of the season to Palo Alto and last Sunday's contest to the Excelsior Merchants of San Francisco.

Manager Herm Fleisman is bolstering up his team for the coming game with the Darcy's, especially his pitching staff, and is out to win.

Local Sportsmen In Association

Organization of Sportsmen Supercedes Redwood Anglers' Club

A large group of fishermen and hunters have organized here into an organization to be known as the Redwood City Sportsmen. This organization is to supercede the Redwood Anglers Club, an organization of fishermen. The frist meeting of the group was held Wednesday night at which time 77 new members were taken in. The meeting was held in the auditorium of the fire house and was attended by 22 members of the Pacific Rod and Gun club of San Francisco including J. P. Cuenin and Al Springer. Cuenin talked on the propagation of bass, and Springer discussed topics of general interest to the sportsmen. The secretary of the Rod and Gun club spoke on the bass bill now before the state legislature.

District Attorney Franklin Swart acted as chairman of the meeting. Four members of the Redwood City city council were present. They were Mayor D. R. Stafford, and councilmen Hinman, Dusel and McNulty. All gave short talks and assured the cooperation of the city with the club in its desires to secure a club house and accomodations on Redwood harbor. The meeting was followed by a banquet.

Those who joined the organization Wednesday night were:

Odd Fellows' Picnic To Be Held Sunday

The annual picnic of the Odd Fellows lodge will take place Sunday. Bay View Lodge of Odd Fellows and its associated lodges have arranged for the picnic to be held this year in the grounds of the Pratt Low Preserving Company's plant. An extensive program of entertainment has been arranged by the committee of which J. A. Gibson, manager of the canning plant, is the chairman. The picnic was held last year at the cannery and proved a very delightful event.

The Odd Fellows picnic has for many years been an event of importance in this city. In fact, a number of years ago, it was the outstanding event of the year, even out-ranking the Fourth of July, or election day. Picnics were frequently held in Finger's Park near the northern limits of the city, later it was the annual custom to hold the picnic at Niles Canyon. Excursion trains were run to the latter place, and most of the stores were closed for this occasion.

The picnic was held at Turner's Park in 1881, and the Times-Gazette account at that time says that George Ross was the speaker of the day and dancing, athletics and games added to the pleasure of the day.

Starting of W. P. Work To Be Fete

At a meeting of a special committee of the Peninsula Industrial Conference held Wednesday night in Redwood City, it was decided to hold the ground breaking ceremonies to mark beginning of construction of the Western Pacific's $8,000,000 rail line on a hill at Belmont just east of El Camino Real. A speaker's stand from which Governor James Rolph and others will address the crowd will be erected on the east slope of the hill and there will be a parade on the Bayshore highway of decorated floats entered by San Mateo county cities, each with a queen. The celebration will be held early in June, it was announced.

Headquarters for the celebration committee have been established at the Belmont office of the Harbor Development Company.

Eagles To Play Boldeman Team

School Writers Given Honors in National Group

Two Get Honors from Quill And Scroll Society

Recently rated as "All-American" in the National Scholastic Press association contest, the Sequoia Times has added to its list of honors this year two more achievements. Word was received that Vera Waller, advanced journalism student, has been awarded fourth place for "ad" writing and Dan Morgan honorable mention for an editorial in the Pacific Coast district of the national Quill and Scroll journalism honor society contests. The subject of the editorial was "The Next Step in Aviation."

This is the second time this year Sequoia has placed in Quill and Scroll contests, which are held four times a year and in which thousands of students participate. Other awards, announced through the Associated Press last December, were to Wawona Washburn and Shirley Langford for second place in news writing and honorable mention for an editorial respectively in the Pacific Coast division.

Quill and Scroll is an international honor society for high school journalists, with honorary founders including William Allen White, editor of the Emporia Gazette; Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press; Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press; and Fremont Older, editor of the San Francisco Call-Bulletin. The organization now has 12,000 members, enrolled in 612 chapters in 45 states of the Union, in England, Italy, Alaska, Hawaii, and Honduras. California has 25 chapters, Sequoia's being organized three years ago by Miss Eunice Schmidt, former advisor of the Sequoia Times.

Students elected to membership in the society must be of junior or senior standing, must be in the upper third of their class scholastically, must have done outstanding journalistic work on their school publications, and having samples of their writing accepted by the national executive council in Des Moines, Iowa.

Four students at Sequoia are at present applicants for membership: Brita Seehohm, William Morinan, Gloria Grandi, and Wawona Washburn.

Miss Louise Watkins, advisor of the Sequoia Times, has recently been elected national vice-president for the Pacific Coast division of the society. She has served as California state president during the past year.

COUNTY GOVERNMENT BILL MEETS WITH VARIED RESPONSE IN COUNTY

Abolition of Fee System Would Be Hardship On Some Offices Until Rise of Salary At End of Present Term

The county government bill passed the assembly in Sacramento Tuesday has formed a topic of considerable discussion around the court house offices since news of its passage has been received here. The chief points of comment were the provision which would do away with the payment of county officials by fees collected in their offices. This applies to all offices except the public administrator and the coroner, and would seriously deminish the income of the county clerk. The provision that no county officer can hold another public office would affect but one official, County Clerk E. B. Hinman, who is also city councilman of Redwood City.

County Clerk E. B. Hinman, the most seriously affected by the proposed changes in the fee system, stated that while he was opposed to the present system, and had always opposed the fee system, he believed that it should be continued until the income of his office was raised. The county clerk's salary has been raised in the present bill from $3500 to $3900 a year, but as no rise in salary can go ino effect during an official's term of office, this rise will not take effect until the county clerk is elected again, almost four years from now. The abolition of the fee system, however, would go into effect immediately.

Hinman pointed out that his predecessor had collected more than $3000 each registration from the fee system, whereas he had not benefited from this growing source of income.

The next most seriously affected office would be that of County Treasurer Harry Jenkins. The treasurer's office has received about $2000 a year in inheritance tax fees. The new bill, however, provides a new deputy in the office of the county treasurer.

Under the new regulataion all the fees heretofore paid to the county clerk and treasurer would be paid into the treasury of the county. Both officials would have their salaries raised to $3900 at the end of their present term of office.

The county auditor, Edward M. Stack, stated the he was satisfied with the bill. He gets two additional deputies in that office. So was Assessor D. P. Flynn given additional help by the bill to enable him to proceed with the task of reappraisal of land valuable in San Mateo county.

Flynn's salary of $4000 a year is unchanged. Likewise that of Tax Collector Ambrose McSweeney, who gets $3500 for office of tax collector and an additional $500 a year as license collector.

Sheriff James J. McGrath's salary remains at $4500, but he is allowed the addition of a fingerprint expert to his staff by the bill, and an additional bailiff if the second superior court bill goes through.

The bill was declared to be satisfactory to James S. James, county engineer, although it will prevent him from accepting the position of city engineer to any municipality or of becoming engineer for any incorporated district while holding the position of county engineer.

The provision in the bill which prevents county officers from holding other offices will not, it is thought, interere with the private practice of law by District Attorney Franklin Swart, since this does not conflict with the duties of that official as advisor to the board of supervisors or as public prosecutor.

Parkman Makes Statement

Assemblman Harry Parkman, who prepared the county government bill, in answer to criticisms recently published, issued a statement concerning the bill. He said in part:

"Recently my attention has been called to statements regarding the county government bill in various newspapers in San Mateo county, and also in San Francisco papers, some of which stories purport to quote public officials of our county. I am at a loss to understand who is at the bottom of this apparent program and just what their intention can be. It is, however, very evident to me that the person or persons who inspire these stories are either attempting through vicious malice to create a wrong impression in the public mind, or else are grossly ignorant and irresponsible.

"Never in my term as Assemblyman for San Mateo county have I had any thought other than that of drafting a bill which will give the taxpayer the greatest possible amount of service for the least possible tax burden.

"With this intention I tried to work with all public officials, including the Grand Jury, in drafting the county government bills of conscienciously endeavored to secure for my guidance the feeling of 1927 and 1929, and I seriously and the people in all parts of the county.

There is no question in my mind as to my having the support of the tremendous majority of the voters and taxpayers in what I am striving to accomplish.

"I can also state, and I am happy to do so, that the officials who are now holding office have practically all co-operated with me, and it has been my belief that they were all in accord with what I am working to do.

In our conferences extending over several months we have gone over the requirements of each office and it has been my impression that they all feeling that everything has been done for them that was possible undre the conditions existing throughout our country.

There have been no salary increases granted and no additional clerks authorized, except such as were very evidently required, and I feel absolutely sure that the head of every public office in our county will join with me in submitting our county government bill for the approval of the people who pay the bills, and whose public needs are being served.

There have also been printed big head lines in some of the county papers to the effect that I have "split" with the governor over this matter, but these statements are absolutely untrue as my relations with Governor Rolph are most pleasant and harmonious in every respect."

Kiwanis Club in School Meeting

Public School Week was observed at the regular weekly meeting of the Redwood City Kiwanis club on Wednesday with a program which had to do with education and with exhibits from the grammar and high schools of the city. The chairman of the meeting was C. M. Doxsee, a member of the board of trustees of the Redwood City elementary school district.

Two talks by members of the club formed the major portion of the program. One was by John Gill, supervising principal of the elementary school district the other by A. C. Argo, principal of the Sequoia Union high school. Both talks had to do with schooling in the different schools.

Four little children from the McKinley school, Jean Harris, Bobby O'Connell, June Newman and Billy Huggins, under the direction of their teacher, Miss Elsie Grant, recited the California pledge and the pledge to the flag, and Robert Henderson, from the 7th grade of the same school rendered two cornet solos in a very capable manner.

Donald Seeley, a junior at the Sequoia Union high school, who was given the highest award in the Shakespearian oratorical contest held in Berkeley last Saturday when he recited the Duke of Glouster's part from King Henry VI, enacted this part for the Kiwanis members.

A large exhibit of art from the Intermediate school, and of drawing, machine shop work, domestic science and applied art from the high school had been arranged around the dining room, and was examined and admired by the club members following the meeting.

The club had been asked to assist in Seaman's Book Week by contributing books to be used on ships of the navy. Each member of the club contributed a book to this cause. The chairman in charge of the committee which made the collection was Amerigo Rossi.

Let's Keep Our Dollars In Redwood City

The question one hears on every side these days is: "How's business?" As a matter of fact business can be generally as we make it. This being true why not make it as nearly as possible as we would wish?

Spring is here and plans are in evidence for spring planting—a necessary beginning for the future harvest. Our fields with proper cultivation will pay every debt and obligation provided we give them the care that is necessary for an abundant yield.

You must buy as well as sell in order that business may have a balanced ratio. When money circulates everyone's business is better. Buy what you need this spring and buy it now from your home merchants. Do not let your dollars go away from home for if you do they never come back and all of us are the losers thereby. So trade at home should be your slogan at this hour more than ever.

The spring season is now at its best in Redwood City and let us make it a market event for our people. Everyone knows times are hard. That is no news. But by getting our little stock of money in circulation wholly within our own community it will surely work surprising results and the condition of everyone will be bettered. Let a smile supplant the frown upon your face and your heart soon will be gladdened and you will be the happier.

Let us go to buying as well as selling. But buy from your own people and you will be surprised at the wonderful results.

The Public School

Schools, clubs and fraternal organizations throughout the state of California have observed this week which is just closing as Public Schools Week, a week dedicated annually to a renewed interest in, and a study of the public schoos of this state.

The practice of holding a Public Schools Week began with a few persons who believed that the public schools of the nation are the foundation stone upon which the superstructure of democratic free government must be erected if it is to be successful.

A democracy more than any other form of goernment depends upon an intelligent citizenship. If the government is to be administered ably by capable public officials, then the people who elect those officials must be an intelligent group. They must understand the government of which they are a part. They must understand the history and the traditions of their nation, their state, and community. They must be able to read intelligently and understandingly concerning the events in which their government is taking part.

Also if a nation is to be prosperous and take a leading position in the world, its citizens must be able to work intelligently, to support themselves, their families and their government.

And, third, in a democracy there must be unified understanding. Its citizens must learn to associate with those of different views, to respect ideas which they themselves do not hold, and know that all, no matter what their race, political or religious belief, are entitled as citizens of the nation, to equal rights.

These three then, the ability to read and understand, the ability to become self supporting and broad democratic viewpoint, it is the duty of the public schools of a democracy to inculcate.

These schools are a part of the American government just as much as the courts or highway commission. They deserve the support of all citizens, yet should be watched more closely than any other branch of the government, for upon the work done by the public schools today, depends the soundness of the democracy of tomorrow.

Anent the proposition to change the name of Redwood City, we notice that a town in France is named Y. Not a bad idea to adopt such a name as that and avoid confusion. Q, for instance, might be a distinctive appellation. Or if it is found that there is already a town called Q, why not XYZ or PDQ or some other combination? By using three letter combinations there should be plenty to go around without any duplication.

We read the other day that the former bandit, Emmett Dalton, says that there is no such thing as a successful bandit. Dalton is now engaged in the real estate business in Los Angeles. Pardon our smile, please.

An Italian recently ate more than two pounds of spaghetti without using his hands. Is there no limit to human accomplishmentss?

A City Within A City

The cornerstone of the first building in a unique project to aid and encourage skilled laborers has been laid in the northwestern quarter of Paris. The plan is to create the first "City of Handicrafts" in the French capital. Three hundred and seventy-five structures, comprising the new "city" are to be ready for occupancy by the beginning of next year.

Seventy-five of the buildings will contain lodgings and workshops for as many artisans. In addition, there are to be 300 work shops for combined use, which, like the individual shops, will be constructed and equipped according to the most modern methods. The new "city" is to be a sort of community within itself. It will have its own shops, its own commercial organization for buying raw materials and selling its products and a banking establishment to finance its activities. A large exposition hall also is planned.

This workers' community eventually will be privately owned, as regards the property itself. The artisan tenants are to be permitted to purchase their respective portions of it by means of payments spread over a period of twenty-five years.

It is expected that provision of up-to-date workshops and the encouragement of the community spirit among artisans will go far toward further developing the handicrafts for which the French are renowned.

Take Home A Picture

The east originated the circulating library, and the west set in motion the first circulating art gallery. Some years ago, an artist of Dayton, Ohio, gathered a group of his friends to make up a collection of paintings that could be borrowed. Hearing of the success of the enterprise, the Philadelphia Art Alliance adopted a similar plan not long after, and later it was taken up in Boston.

The same idea is being carried out in Manhattan with widespread benefit by the American Woman's Association. Thirty artist members of the organization "pool" their works, which are available for borrowing at the art gallery in the A. W. A. Clubhouse at 353 West 57th Street. For a nominal yearly fee, one may "take out" any picture in the gallery, keeping it for a month at a time. Then it is returned and another picture selected. If the borrower becomes very much attached to the picture she may buy it, or perhaps arrange to keep it for a month longer. Non-members as well as members of the club are entitled to enjoy the privileges of the gallery.

Every picture in the loan collection is of a standard which would meet the requirements of any of the established galleries, according to Mrs. Emily M. Reist, chairman of the Circulating Art Gallery Committee. "We wanted our members to have the opportunity of borrowing the best work we could give them," Mrs. Reist states. "The artists in the organization have co-operated splendidly."

Every kind of picture is offered the borrower. There are oils and water colors, tricky little things in black and white charcoal drawings, pastels and etchings. Landscapes and seascapes, portraits, flowers and whimsical sketches of children and animals are available. Although smaller canvasses, suitable for apartments and single rooms are in the majority, the larger pictures also may be had. At present the collection numbers about a hundred pictures, and the artists are contributing new ones from time to time.

"Nick" Longworth

The sudden death of Speaker Nicholas Longworth causes a shock to the whole nation. "Nick" Longworth was one of the most popular speakers of recent years. He served through three Congresses, from 1925 to 1931. It is particularly to his credit that he was able to keep the goodwill and friendship of all factions in the House during a period when partisanship, of differences engendered by the bloc system, was rampart in Congress.

That the House maintained a high place in the regard of the country during the recent years in which the Senate has constantly lost prestige may be credited in some degree to the late speaker's spirit of fairness, his grasp of the situation which was in control, and his statesmanlike ability to hold the whip hand without in any degree antagonizing the opposition.

The affection in which Mr. Longworth was held is manifested by the effect of his death on the 434 members with whom he was associated in the capacity of presiding officer. Though a staunch Republican, no partisanship marked his parliamentary rule. Partisanship was forgotten at his bier.

Practical Mother's Day

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the New York governor, has made a practical suggestion for the observance of Mother's Day. Devote it, she urges, to helping needy mothers of dependent children.

This can be done in various ways. By giving to welfare organizations that deal with such mothers, by doing something directly for mothers in need of friendship and encouragement as well as material aid.

A Mother's Day of this sort would not interfere at all with any personal observance in individual homes. It would help to make constructive use of the great amount of sentiment developed in connection with that day.

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

SHEILA ALLEN, bound for Europe in a tourist cabin, has a cabin-mate,

CONSTANCE KERR, a millionaire's daughter, who is her twin in looks. Sheila, after years in a rural town, is seeking adventure.

She has refused to marry her guardian, YOUNG DOCTOR MALCOM BAXTER. Constance tells Sheila she is Heaven-sent-a means of escape from a terrible mess.

Constance is fleeing from her husband, THE COUNT DE BELLEFONTE, whom she married that morning.

She consented to marry him after a quarrel with HARRY EDMONDS, with whom she is desperately in love.

Chapter 5.

"Marry in Haste"

Constance rang for her coffee at nine o'clock the next morning. Generally, after a dance, the Kerr heiress slept until noon. But, on that bright summer day, she rose early. She was to meet the Count de Bellefonte at an appointed place.

She told her maid to pack, intimating that she was leaving for the first house-party in a few hours. She met her fiance according to schedule, and he kissed her hand all the way to the City Hall. She was very cool about the whole proceeding. "Which should have proved to me that I didn't give a rap about him," she said to Sheila.

By sheer luck, they evaded reporters, and, in the jostle and jam of the marriage-license bureau, they escaped recognition. A clerk asked them questions and filled out some blanks Constance was relieved to see that the names of "Eugenia Kerr and Jean LaFarge" signified nothing to him.

Afterward they sought the justice of the peace in an adjoining room and were married. Then they entered a taxi and sped uptown.

"I dropped the Count at his hotel," Constance said. "We'd decided to stay there for a few days — or until we could get reservations for Europe. It's frightfully difficult, at this season, you know, because everybody's going abroad, but Jean thought he could manage it. We arranged that I should pick up my bags and depart ostensibly for a house-party, and meet Jean at his hotel. Meanwhile, Jean would write a letter to my family, announcing our marriage, and address it to the first port of call of the Sea Gull. We hoped the news wouldn't leak out before we were safely embarked for Europe."

Constance returned home and saw that her luggage was ready. She gave her maid a month's vacation with full pay, looked around her luxurious suite or rooms, and inspected the contents of the jewel-case that her maid handed her, to assure herself that all her trinkets were there. She missed one article — a bracelet that Harry Edmonds had given her at Christmas.

"It shows where my heart was," she remarked to Sheila, with a wry smile. "Barely married to another man, and unable to go on my honeymoon without Harry's gift."

She and the maid searched her effects without result She tried to remember the last time she had worn the bracelet and recalled that it had been on the afternoon when she had given Felicia Marston tea in the library, and Felicia had told her about Julia Breton's being on the ship on which Harry had sailed. After Felicia had left, Constance went into a transport of jealous rage, wrenched the bracelet from her arm, and threw it on the floor. She hadn't seen it since. But she recalled that her mother had come into the library just as she was dashing up to her room to have a good cry. It occurred to her that her mother might have picked it up and, sensing with relief that this meant the end of Harry Edmonds, decided not to reopen the subject.

Constance went to her mother's rooms and searched. She felt that she absolutely couldn't go without Harry's bracelet. There was a very beautiful secretaire in the sitting-room, with a little secret cabinet, where Constance knew that her mother sometimes put things of not too great value. She knew how to open it and did so. The bracelet was there. . . .And other things were there, also!

The other things were six letters from Harry Edmonds, bearing a London postmark.

"Poor darling Mother!" Constance sighed at this juncture, while Sheila looked a little shocked at this evidence of maternal duplicity. "It must have hurt her conscience to take those letters out of the mail. She probably comforted herself with the thought that she wasn't stealing them——only mislaying them."

Constance sat down and read each one of these six tempestuous love-letters from Harry Edmonds. When she had finished, she knew that she could never love any one but Harry. The Count was a bad mistake, but it wasn't too late to correct it. Harry loved her. He was repentant, imploring. He begged her to come to London and marry him.

Constance was accustomed to making instant decisions. Wealth is assurance, and, if she chose to go on a trip at a moment's notice, she had the wherewithal to grease the wheels of red tape, to overcome obstacles, overturn tradition, and set all officialdom on its ear. Fifteen minutes after she had read Harry Edmond's letters, she was in a steamship office, demanding passage on the first boat bound for Europe.

But even the Kerr money couldn't make space on crowded liners. She was told that one reservation had been canceled on a ship that was sailing the following day. But she was afraid to risk it. The Count would wait for her just so long, and then he would come in search of her And she wasn't prepared to talk to him just yet. Her indifference toward him had changed to absolute panic, since reading Harry's letters. She realized the enormity of what she had done and how completely the Count de Bellefonte could hold her to her bargain, if he chose. And she had an uneasy feeling that he wouldn't relinquish a connection with the Kerr millions.

She tried several other steamship offices and at last obtained tourist passage on the Macedonia. A shocked clerk protested: "But I am sure it would not be sufficiently comfortable for you, Madam." But she brushed his protests aside.

Fortunately her passport was in order. She made a mad dash for the bank and then rushed to the pier.

"The gang-plank was being raised," she told Sheila. "I shed twenty-dollar bills as I went, as bribes, as tips—anything to get aboard. The ship was moving when I stepped on deck. . . .And well, here I am!"

"But the Count?" asked Sheila. "what did you tell him?"

Constance laughed, for the first time during her recital. "I didn't tell him anything. Nor shall I—until after I've had a talk with Harry. The Count, my dear, for all I care, is still cooling his heels in his hotel."

South Sea Isle Given Nickname From Tin Cans

Method of Delivering Mail Furnished Island New Title

WASHINGTON, April 20, (UP)—Life on a sea-level mountain peak where full dress uniform is a shirt and mail comes in tin cans is described in the annual report of field work and exploration just published by the Smithsonian Institution.

The mountain peak lies in the South Seas and is listed on maps as Niaufoou Island, but more persons can recall it as "Tin Can Island" which was the scene about a year ago of a total eclipse of the sun.

Henry C. Kellers represented the Institution with the 1930 United States Naval Osbervatory Eclipse Expedition.

The Nickname

"The nickname 'Tin Can Island' was given to it," he says in his report, "from the unique method by which mail is delivered there. The mail steamer, which comes about every six weeks, throws mail overboard in a sealed can and the natives swim out and tow it to the shore. The outgoing mail is carried out to the steamer by the swimmers who hold it on poles above the water."

The island has many distinguishing features. It is the last independent kingdom of the South Seas and is ruled by Queen Salote Tabou and a parliament. Under mandate the foreign affairs of the island are administered by New Zealand.

Volcanic Origin

All of Niaufoou is a volcanic crater about four and one-half by five miles in extent and the greater portion of the small area above the sea contains a circular crater lake surrounded by a ridge of land rising from 200 to 800 feet above the surface of the lake. The volcanic peak rises about 6,000 feet from the ocean floor. There have been eruptions, The latest in 1929, and in this latter flow of lava the inhabitants of one village fled only a few moments before their village was over run. There was no loss of life.

Although the Polynesians were friendly and hospitable, some of them were sceptical about the eclipse which was predicted by members of the naval expedition. Several wagered pigs against shirts on the disappearance of the sun with the result that the son of one of the traders who chose to bet on the scientists now owns more than his share of Tin Can Island pigs. Next to roast dog, Keller reported, roast pig is the favorite food of the islanders.

GLASS REMOVED FROM BRAIN

BOSTON, (UP)—Several fragments of glass were removed from the brain of seven-year-old Alex Tomaso in one of the most delicate operations ever performed at City hospital. Dr. Donald Monroe, who performed the operation with an electrically-heated scalpel, referred to the feat as "just another operation."

Open Air Concerts To Be Resumed On Hillsborough Woodland Stage

Plans for the sixth season of summer concerts in the Woodland theatre at Hillsborough on Sunday afternoons have virtually been completed according to announcement just issued by Leonora Wood Armsby, managing director for the Philharmonic society of San Mateo county.

Eight concerts will be given in the peninsula open air theatre on successive Sundays beginning June 21st and concluding August 9th.

Following the custom established in previous seasons, guest conductors of international repute will wield the baton, directing the orchestra of eighty-five, recruited from the personnel of the regular San Francisco symphony orchestra.

Walter Damrosch, dean of American symphony conductors, has been engaged for the San Mateo and San Francisco series as well as the Hollywood bowl concerts and will inaugurate the season, conducting the first two concerts.

Sir Hamilton Harty of London will make his American debut as conductor in the Woodland theatre, directing a single concert in the peninsula out-door series the first Sunday in July.

A former conductor of the Bosteton symphony orchestra, Pierre Monteux, will come from Paris to conduct in Hillsborough and Hollywood, joining the ranks of world famous directors who have been lured to the Pacific coast for these summer programs.

The instant popularity achieved last summer by Arthur Rodzinski, the dynamic young Polish leader of the Los Angeles orchestra, prompted the music committee to secure Dr. Rodzinski's return again this season and he will conduct two concerts during July.

A fifth guest conductor is yet to be secured, and negotiations are pending with a number of well known directors ranking with those already engaged. Announcement will be made shortly of the selection.

The steadily growing popularity of these summer concerts each year and the continued enthusiastic support has inspired the board of directors to make very ambitious plans for the coming season.

Legislative... Sidelights...

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 25 (UP)—The discussion was heated, and the senate well divided over a proposal to amend the law relative to the list of personal property exempt from attachment. Senator Ralph E. Swing, San Bernardino, was urging that automobiles valued up to $500 and used for business be included in the bill to modernize the measure by replacing the "horse and buggy" items. "What you really mean, Senator,' said Senator Charles H. Deuel, Chico, "is that the old gray mare ain't what she used to be?"

A high school class from a nearby town arrived at the capitol the other day expecting to find the assembly chamber ringing with legislative dedate. The assembly, however, had adjourned. A group of diminutive pages seeing the class's disapointment, decided to put on a session for the students. A three-foot "speaker" climbed on the rostrom, others took assembly seats—and the way they passed bills!

Senator Henry E. Carter, Los Angeles, who has been active in nine sessions of the state legislature as a senator, was questioned concerning procedure. "I am surprised I should be asked such a question," he said. "Well," answered Senator C. C. Baker, Salinas, "I really didn't expect you'd be able to answer it." All of which is an example of the gay and friendly repartee that features meetings of the upper house.

Everybody was thinking of Los Angeles in "big city" terms until "Bob" Kinney, Los Angeles, spilled the beans. A bill was being discussed relative to live stock inspections. "Why," said Kinney in answer to a question, "there are hundreds of herds of livestock right in Los Angeles." Positively pastoral, as it were.

Feldscher, Mrs. F. S. Becker, Mrs. H. Blackington.

A candidate for the superior bench in Los Angeles was bidding Governor Rolph farewell when he stopped to admonish the executive that he "must stay out of airplanes on account of your health." "Don't say anything like that to the legislature until I get my plane bill through," answered Rolph, "or you'll never be a judge."

The Redwood City Moose Lodge is planning a social to take place tomorrow night at 7:30 in the Casino at Emerald Lake No. 2. This is for members of the lodge and their wives, relatives and friends. A program of entertainment including some interesting and unusual motion pictures will be enjoyed, followed by refreshments and an informal dance.

All members of the recently organized lodge have indicated great enthusiasm for the order, and the lodge here expects to have a membership of 1500. This is the only lodge of the Order of Moose operating between San Francisco and San Jose.

A class of candidates were initiated into the lodge Wednesday evening, the initiatory work being conferred by the Oakland degree team in full uniform. The lodge received 33 new members at this initiation.

Charles Holt has offered the lodge the use of the Casino at Emerald lake for all lodge meetings and socials. The club rooms have been arranged with special drapes, lighting effects and other details to add to the attractiveness of the place.

Employees Cement Plant to Picnic

The employees of the local plant of the Pacific Portland Cement Co. are planning for a big picnic to be held at Gilmore Park near Portola on May 10. This picnic will be in celebration of the second consecutive year which the plant has operated without a single lost-time accident. At the completion of their first year without a loss-time accident last May, the plant was presented with a beautiful trophy by the Portland Cement Association. This will be engraved this year in comemoration of the second year.

Two employees, H. Haruff and G. T. Chaney, were elected last week by their fellow workmen as delegates to the safety conference to be held in Washington D. C., on May 10.

Daughter Is Born To Mrs. Charles Bender

Word was received here yesterday announcing the birth in the Hollywood hospital Wednesday morning of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bender. Mrs. Bender was formerly Miss Hazel Lamb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Lamb of Arch street, this city. Before their marriage, Mrs. Bender and her sister, Miss Mildred Lamb, now Mrs. Earl Baldwin of Los Angeles, were prominent in theatricals, appearing professionally in a singing and dancing number under the name of the "Lamb Sisters." The Bender home is at Garney in the Shenendoah Valley, east of Los Angeles.

BLUEFIELD, Va. (UP)—Watt Graham's hounds unsuccessfully chased "Old Peg Leg," a fox who had one leg broken off in a trap years ago, again the other night near Bluefield. "Peg Leg" is known to be at least 15 years old and hunters say there is no more sagacious fox than he.

LAST OF TANFORAN RACES TOMORROW FOR THIS SEASON

Thirty-one Day Racing Event Closes at San Bruno Track

Getaway day at Tanforan tomorrow (Saturday) is expected to lure a crowd equally as great as the 25,000 who assembled there last Saturday to honor Governor James Rolph, Jr., and see the handicap named in his honor go to the famous mount, Alexander Pantages. This week the Pacific Coast Breeders Association will offer the Au Revoir Handicap, the last for this meeting.

In the Au Revior event tomorrow (Saturday) Alexander Pantages is expected to be the favorite with top weight assigned him. Several noted horses competing last week in the gubernatorial event will make a final try tomorrow (Saturday) to finish in the lead.

So will close one of the most successful racing seasons ever held on the Pacific coast, with thousands attending daily. Turfdom's finest have competed and have been ridden well by some of the most capable jockeys in the game. Officials of the track, in their endeavor to keep out shady practices, have made it a tough meeting for some of the boys and some lost their riding privileges for infractions, but the severity has done much toward promoting great riding and fair play on the track.

One of the outstanding things the meeting this spring has revealed is the capability of California-bred horses to step with and in many cases step ahead of their eastern competitors. There will be other opportunities, the next being the 31-day meeting planned for Tanforan late in October. The success of the present meeting promises to lure more of the famous horses from the east for the program in October.

Plans are under way to make the big racing plant at San Bruno even more attractive to fans and racing men. The association expects to greatly enlarge the stand capacity at the track by the addition of a new clubhouse. Extensive stable improvements also are comteimplated.

Fans will get their last opportunity to see bangtails romp at Tanforan tomorrow (Saturday), until they return in the fall.

Cherokees Defeat Military Academy

In a practice lightweight baseball tilt, the Sequoia Union high school 130-pound baseball squad defeated the California Military Academy 18 to 4 on the Sequoia diamond last Tuesday afternoon. The game went only six innings, but was sufficient for the Cherokees to run up a impressive score.

The Cherokees ran up six runs in the first inning and batted around in the fifth for nine runs. Errors were frequent by both sides during the encounter. The Academy team gave away many runs in the first and fifth, when the Cherokees tallied most frequently, on wild throws.

West pitched the entire game for Sequoia, while Corkin hurled for the military school with Brosius receiving. Captain Byrd caught the entire game for Sequoia.

Sequoia Swim Team Wins in All Classes

Showing strength in the lightweight classes the Sequoia Union high school lightweight swimmers trounced Lowell high school of San Francisco in three divisions for the total score of 109 to 37 in the Indian tank last Tuesday.

The Sequoia 130's led the scoring with a 56 to 5 victory over the Lowell team, while the Indian 120's won 23 to 20 and the 110's copped their class 25 to 18. This meet was the first experience for a number of the lightwenghts in the 10's and 20's.

In the 130's the Cherokees allowed the San Francisco team but five third places for a total of five points, completely shutting them out of any first or seconds. Competition in the two lighter classes was closer.

"Ky" Martin, who won the 100-yard free style and medley race, and Stuart Goldthwaite with firsts in the 50-yard free and back stroke were high-point scorers of the meet.

Sequoia's 130's - 110's Win Track; 120s Lose

Led by the heavy scoring of the 130's, who outscored their opponents 73 to 18, the Sequoia Union high school track and field team defeated Palo Alto high school 142 to 84 in a dual meet on the Sequoia oval last Wednesday afternoon.

While the 130's were winning their class, the Cherokee 110's raced to a 29 to 21 win. The Viking 120's proved superior to the Sequoia 120's, reputed to be the strongest of the Sequoia weight teams, by defeating them 45 to 41.

Coach Ray Dimick, Cherokee track mentor, was pleased with the performance of the lightweight team. Last week the lightweights nosed out the San Mateo team in a dual meet on the Sequoia cinder path.

Jew of Paly took firsts in the 100 and 220- yard sprints to outrace Marino and Murphy, Sequoias best bets in the 120's. Matheson tied at five foot two inches, with a Paly opponent.

Everett won the 880-yard run and 440-yard race in the 130-class tied for high point honors and also copped the high jump over Yancey and the Palo Alto jumper. Wells scored 18 points for the Vikings in the meet.

Captain John Semeria of the 120's led the Indian squad with a record breaking triumph of 50 feet in the eight pound shot, and a tie for first in the pole vault at nine foot six inches.

Susuma Okamoto of the 110's piled up 13½ digits to his credit. Frank Armstrong broke the unofficial league record in the discus with a toss of 101 feet to take a first for the Cherokees over the Red and Green.

Coach Dimick will send his varsity team against Menlo high school next Tuesday. This will be the final workout for the Cherokees before the P. A. L. next week.

MEDAL MAN

The feat performed by Ben Eastman is the greatest "iron man" performance seen on this Pacific coast in a decade. Eastman won the 440-yard race in 48 3-10 seconds, a fraction of a second slower than Bud Spencer's meet mark. He won the 880-yard race in 1 minute 56 3-5 seconds, and ran the last and winning lap in the relay in 49 seconds flat.

EUROPE TO SEE GOLF CHAMP OF PHILIPPINES

MANILA, P. I., April 24 (UP)—France, England and Italy will see for the first time this year a Filipino golfer in action.

Larry Montes, twice Philippine open champion departed March 13 for Europe via a devious route which will land him in Genoa, where he will do some practicing in preparation for the big open events of the continent.

Montes will participate in the British open championship June 1, and will proceed to France for the French open championship June 8.

From France Montes will cross the Atlantic to America, and proceed to the Pacific Coast for some minor tournaments before entering the American open on July 2.

Montes' trip is being sponsored by Dr. Norman C. Downs, who sent him to the United States two years ago for his debut abroad. Montes made a good showing in the United States, although he never got within the inner circle of any major event.

Dr. Downs and Filipino fans are hoping that Montes will profit by his previous experience and make a good showing on his coming tour.

He expects to return to Manila in time for the Philippine open championship next December.

MONTANA OFFERS CANDIDATE FOR BASEBALL PRESIDENCY

BUTTE, Mont., April 24. (UP)—Montana has a candidate for the presidency of the American baseball league. He is Joe L. Markham, Butte publisher and chairman of the Montana State Athletic commission.

Long before he was identified with the newspaper field, Markham was prominent as a sportsman.

While ring followers may remember him for his drastic ruling when an epidemic of fouls attacked the sport a few years ago—rules since copied by virtually every commission with jurisdiction over boxing—others will remember Markham of a generation ago.

There was a famous Triple B basketball team, conceded the national championship when touring teams were a novelty. That was Markham's idea, and it was a success.

In the Rocky Mountain states, Markham is remembered as the first athletic director at Montana State College, which neither boasted a baseball or football team until Markham arrived on the campus.

Back in 1913, before the legislature lowered the curtain on legal boxing in Montana, Markham served on the State Boxing Commission, later to become a county athletic commissioner when the state commission was dissolved.

Markham is an ardent bowler and golfer, and has served as an officer of both state bowling and golfing associations.

His career in the newspaper field, where he served a time as sports editor, has been one of constant climbing through the many departments of the industry.

He has served as a member of the board of directors of the Northwest Newspaper Association, and as a director of the North American Newspaper Alliance.

SPEAKING of SPORT

Campolo's Career In Contrast with Firpo's

The careers of Vittorio Campolo and Luis Angel Firpo, Argentina's two contributions to heavyweight boxing, present a strange contrast. Firpo earned the staggering sum of $850,000 in 30 minutes and came within an eyelash of winning the the world's heavyweight championship

Campolo is fortunate if he has the cost of transportation after two years of effort and three trips to New York.

Firpo came to New York unheralded and unsung, with a celluloid collar, worn fighting togs and an unimpressive record. He came without a manager, and never had one. He trained himself, did his own mending, cooking, matchmaking and collecting. Furthermore, he did not share his earnings with anyone and he still has his $850,000 along with some more he made in real estate and automobile selling back in Argentina.

Many fans still contend that Firpo was robbed of the championship through the inefficiency of a referee. Regardless of the merits of this argument, Luis at least has the satisfaction of knowing he was a participant in the most sensational heavyweight fight of all times.

His successor, Campolo, boxes 100 per cent better than Firpo, and hits as hard He is young, strong and ambitious and came to this country with a blare of trumpets. He was fortunate enough to draw a million dollars worth of publicity through his size.

Unfortunately Campolo had a manager—or a group of managers. He ditched them, but in so doing managed himself into lawsuits and courts where most of his fighting has taken place .

At present he has two managers, Madison Square Garden and Luis Gutierrez. His contract with the Garden calls for three bouts, for which he is supposed to receive $100,000 and it is this contract which is keeping him idle.

Campolo has made several fights in this country — notably with Johnny Risko and Phil Scott—but received little for his services. Meanwhile he has maintained an expensive training retinue and done much sitting around waiting for a chance.

The climax, as far as Campolo was concerned, was reached when his joust, with Jack Sharkey, fell through last September. Apparently Campolo could not draw enough to make the bout profitable—and as a result promoters are wary of paying him big purses for future bouts.

Campolo recently returned and hopes to meet Tommy Loughran under the Garden promotion. If successful he may yet have an opportunity to reach the class, but it is unlikely that he ever will hit the dizzy financial pace set by his predecessor.

BASEBALL SEASON GOOD

MADISON, Wis., April 20 (UP)—Despite an unsuccessful basketball season at the University of Wisconsin, from the standpoint of games won, the new $500,000 Camp Randall field house drew revenue but $100 short of the sum anticipated. At the start of the season, with prospects pointing to a strong team for Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, basketball coach, the department estimated returns of $36,000. The revenue was $35,900.

TENNIS CHAMPS

Wilmer L. Allison and J. Gilbert Hall arrived in San Francisco from Honolulu Tuesday, April 14, accompanied by Mrs. Allison and Miss Claire Caswell, Mrs. Alison's sister. The tennis team of Allison and Hall did not bring home the bacon as was expected. For winning the amateur doubles of the Pacific tennis championship they received big poi bowls made from koa wood, the Hawaiian mahogany. Photo shows, left to right, Mrs. Allison, Mr. Allison, Miss Caswell and Gilbert Hall.

The steeplechase at the old Stanford Stock farm on Sunday is to be a big event that will draw a large crowd to see the thrilling events of the day. The steeplechase is to be watched by hundreds on the peninsula.

The event is under the auspices of the Menlo Steeplechase and Racing Association, Charles Dunphy, chairman. The race committee consists of George A. Pope, Jr., Charles Dunphy, E. Pedkins and A. E. Russell, Jr. A. Mouel-Fenton is racing secretary.

Mrs. Margaret Tupper passed away at the home of her son, Allison H. Tupper, last Thursday at the age of 74 years. Mrs. Tupper came from a pioneer family that came to California in a covered wagon during the gold rush.

Mrs. Tupper was the granddaughter of James Lynnu, who crossed the plains to California by ox team in 1847. He resided in San Jose and planted one of the first pear orchards north of Santa Clara. Her father was Hugh Brown, who crossed the plains in 1849. She was born in Mountain View and attended valley schools. Before moving to Menlo Park she resided in Taft for 18 years.

The deceased is survived by her two sons, Allison H. and Max L. Tupper; three sisters, Mrs. E. L. Wear of San Francisco, Mrs. Nina Ramsay of San Francisco, and Mrs. Mary Hickey of Santa Cruz, and by a brother, Ben Brown of Sacramento.

The benefit card party to be given next Tuesday evening in the auditorium of the grammar school by St. Joseph Alumni will draw a large crowd. Over fifty prizes will be given to the winners, This is to be the big game of the season. Buy a ticket and help a deserving cause.

The Pastime Pool Room on the highway will close its doors on the first of the month. Chief of Police Love refuses to renew a license for the place when it expires on April 30.

The rumor that the MacBain home was sold to an Oakland man this week is erroneous. There were negotiations for the property by an Oakland citizen but they have fallen through.

A declaration of intention to wed was filed in San Jose on Thursday by Jose L. Garbezy, Jr., 35, and Mary F. Morris, 34, both of Menlo Park.

Martin McCarthy, the grocer, has purchased a parcel of property in the exclusive residential section of Stanford Park, and will soon erect a palatial residence. When all the improvements are completed in that part of the city it will be the best residential district in the community.

Mrs. Vinnie Wardner and Guy de Marco were united in marriage at the home of the former's daughter, Mrs. John Rezek, 1516 San Antonion avenue, Monday evening. Rev. Bone officiated. The pretty bride and the groom are residents of Dunsmuir, Siskiyou county, and came down for the wedding. Mr. Rezek is a baker for Mr. Hornbuckle. Mr. and Mrs. Marco will leave today for their home in the north. Many friends of the parties attended the ceremony. A sumptuous supper followed.

The second series of the Native Daughters' card parties will take place next Wednesday evening in the new Masonic Hall. Good prizes are to be awarded the winners of the contest.

The city council met in special session Tuesday evening to hear protests against resolution of intention No. 31-2, calling for street improvements on Pine street and adjacent roads, all east of the railroad.

All the members were present. A large number of taxpayers and citizens crowded the council chamber.

From the many ringing speeches in favor of the contemplated improvements it would appear that the meeting was one of approval of the actions of the council rather than one of protest.

The clerk read a petition signed by 36 property owners protesting the proposed street improvements. The petition was presented by J. J. Furnivall, who secured the greater number of signers. In individual letters to the council, three of the signers withdrew their names and signified their approval of the proposed work.

A group of property owners on Pine street, including two professors at Menlo Junior College, protested the improvements on that thoroughfare on the ground that the street ought to be paved through to Ravenswood avenue. Otherwise they were heartily in favor of the proposition.

Mr. Cluff, who laid out the tract fronting on Pine street, agreed to furnish a deed to the extension of Pine street so that the council could legally finish the work to Ravenswood.

A letter was read from F. J. Furnivall in which he recited that the time had not arrived for the proposed improvements, that they were a luxury, and later on, when times would be better, the work could be proceeded with. In due time the council would be asked to consider the proposition and that no solicitation would be needed.

After the reading of the protests, withdrawals and communications, Mayor Weeden declared the question open for discussion. Miss E. Noel declared that Mr. Furnivall had written the Mills Estate Company in New York asking that the company protest. As a matter of fact the Mills property is not in the district to be improved and that Furnivall went out of his way in the matter.

E. H. Hart, a professor at Menlo Junior College, living on Pine street, favors the improvement and thought that they should be done, but he denounced the petty politics and methods used by those opposed. During his two and half years of residence in Menlo Park all he heard was bickering and quarrels on the part of certain property owners, he said.

John B. Welsh's ringing denounciation of the methods used by those opposed to the improvements planned by the council found approval in loud applause. He said that when the town wanted sewer improvements this element opposed it, when electric lights were needed, opposition arose and the only way these utilities were finally secured was by the hard work of the progressive citizens of the community. "It took 40,000 soldiers to put a side walk on Santa Cruz avenue," declared Welsh. During all his life in Menlo Park all he had heard was bickering and fighting by a certain group that always fought improvements. He thought that the council should go ahead with the pavement and if necessary choke them down the throats of the opposition.

Miss Meta Kugeler spoke in favor of the improvements saying that those attending the Catholic church had to walk in the middle of Oak Grove avenue when a sidewalk should be provided and thus avoid the hazards of accident and injury to pedestrians. She deplored this state of affairs and in caustic language denounced those opposing such needed improvements.

P. Kearney also spoke in favor of the proposed work and referred to the opposition as "monkey wrench throwers."

Mayor Weeden in a forcible speech said that the property owners were misinformed in many instances as to the attitude of the council in this matter of improvements. The council was not railroading the matter but was working unceasingly for the very best interests of the taxpayer. Menlo Park was behind in paving and improvements. This was the time, when material was cheap to do the work. He stated that cement was never cheaper and that contractors would bid low on all work. This was the opportune time to relieve the muddy streets and place Menlo Park in a position to lure the home dweller to its precincts. He further declared that it would be expensive to abandon these proceedings.

In a loud tone the mayor declared he could not see why a person signing the original petition could withdraw without being wrongly informed by certain designing persons. The petition asking for the contemplated improvement was properly circulated and signed by enthusiastic property owners. Why they should change their minds in so short a time was beyond him.

Councilman E. P. Crane in a stirring speech flayed the newspapers who questioned the honesty of the council. He said the city engineer's compensation of six and three quarters per cent was only nominal when it was taken into consideration that out of this he had to pay inspectors, draughtsmen, clerks and others to assist him. Crane declared that the city engineer of Santa Clara was paid a salary of $250 a month and all expenses. Crane was vociferous in his denounciation of those opposed to the improvements.

Mrs. Mary Hand wanted the improvements and in a neat speech urged the council to proceed with the propostioin. J. Cooper, in a well phrazed speech, added his approval to the proposition. He owns holdings on Glenwood avenue.

A citizen living on Hoover street made the statement that his lot on that street was worth $400 before the improvements were put in and now he would not take $1200 for the property.

Another citizen declared that Menlo Park needed an up-to-date undertaking parlors to bury the mossbacks.

At this juncture Miss Sarah Fry said she was not in the proposed improvement district but favored progress and suggested that a mass meeting be held so that all factions could be heard and matters thrashed out. The council took the cue and after some discussion agreed to meet next Monday night at Trinity Guild on Laurel avenue. Notices are to be sent all parties interested.

On Councilman E. J. Crane's motion to refer the protests to the city engineer for computation, Furnivall demanded that someone be named to check the petitions with Mehl and declared his willingness to perform that service. Mehl stated that from the petition itself there was no means of telling what property was represented in the protest and that he would like someone acquainted thoroughly with the district to help him in order to save the necessity for tracing through records.

Here, Councilman E. A. Blake declared to Mehl, "You ought to know where all the properties protested are." Turning to Mayor W. H. Weeden and the other members of the council, he declared, " I say you are trying to railroad this through." The storm was finally quieted after Furnivall was seated by Police Chief Frank Love at the mayor's order when he broke into the argument from the floor again.

Issuance of bonds under the 1915 bond act totaling $3931 on the recently completed Hoover street paving was approved by the council. The total cost of the project was $6711.

On request of County Fire Warden Bert Werder that the city cooperate with the county in stamping out the sale of fireworks, introduction of a former city ordinance completely prohibiting the sale of intention was approved. An ordinance of intention to open Live Oak avenue from its present termination to connect with University drive was also introduced.

Governor Rolph Demands Action On Water Plans

Executive Threatens to Call Special Session of Legislature

By MELVIN LORD

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 25 (UP)—Angry over the failure of legislators to settle the state's water problem, Governor Rolph tonight threatened a special session of the legislature unless immediate action is taken. Continued refusal on the part of various factions to agree to a co-ordinated state water plan in the face of extreme necessity, prompted the "special session" announcement.

"It is apparent that very few leaders of any section of the state are opposed to proper legislature that will store actual surplus waters, and deliver them to regions now drying up. The divergence seems to be in regard to the form the law is to take which will cover the subject," Governor Rolph stated.

"If a special session is necessary to harmonize conflicting opinions, then I must surely feel it is my duty to call one," he concluded.

The water program under consideration involves a Colorado river conduit to Los Angeles, Santa Ana flood control, and a series of dams and pumping systems in Northern California.

Two of the legislature's most preplexing problems were marked on the list tonight with the signing by Governor Rolph of the two reapportionment bills by Senator J. W. McKinley, Los Angeles, and the budget bill providing for the expenditure by the state during the next two years of $266,000,000.

Approval by the Governor of the Assembly and Congressional redistricting bills throws Southern California into the political limelight by giving it control of the lower house of the legislature, and 11 of California's 20 congressmen.

Whether a referendum vote on reapportionment as threatened by northern legislators will succeed remain a moot question, but southern representatives are confident they can block any move which would change the lineup as constituted in the McKinley bills.

Singing of the budget bill closed a controversy during which threats of drastic action were made by the senate "economy bloc" but never carried out, while the financial plan was awaiting the signature of Rolph, the senate finance committee dropped any attempt at an "economy" program and approved the so-called "pork barrel" bills amounting to approximately $4,000,000.

Every section of the state was included in the special appropriation measures approved, which included the following major items:

Santa Ana flood control, $400,000; Los Angeles flood control, $400,000; indemnity for cattle destroyed to prevent spread of bovine tuberculosis, $530,000; preliminary engineer costs of San Francisco bay bridge, $650,000; guaranteeing payment of $100 per average daily attendance of junior colleges, $1,000,000; 12 new superior judges for Los Angeles county $96,000, and one for San Diego, $3,000; and $70,000 to match federal funds for vocational rehabilitation.

The committee tabled a bill to provide a new teachers retirement plan which Rolland A. Vandegrift, director of finance, said would cost the state $8,000,000 for the first biennium.

Asserting that oil companies, banks and public utilities are not paying their proper share of the state tax burden, Senator Herbert C. Jones, San Jose, today introduced a resolution seeking an investigation by the state to determine proper legislation to correct the "situation."

Senator Jones asserted the state would be $20,000,000 richer if the three groups were taxed on the same basis as general property.

As a relief to unemployment, Assemblyman James L. Quigley, San Francisco, introduced a bill to memorialize congress to increase the personnel of the army and navy up to their authorized strength.

After a debate lasting several hours, the senate tonight delayed final consideration of a bill aimed at "loan sharks." The measure, raising the legal rate of interest from 2 to 3½ per cent per month, would prohibit any "extra" charges and actually reduced the rate, proponents claimed.

A series of amendments further tightening the measure for the protection of persons seeking loans of $300 or less, will be taken up tomorrow.

School Week

school work have been arranged in all grades, and an invitation has been issued to parents and friends to visit the schools and inspect the work.

Essays on education have been prepared by the pupils of the various schools. One of these written by Ernest Foppiano, a pupil in the 8th grade of the McKinley school traces the development of education in the United States from the beginning of this country. This essay is printed herewith:

The Development of Education

The very early schools taught the children the doctrines of the churches that their parents belonged to. The chief purpose of the colleges was to train clergymen for the church.

By the opening of the nineteenth century the schools had lost some of their religious character, and they began teaching subjects like, arithmetic, history, and geography, but they were still under the influence of religious authorities.

The schools at that time were supported by charity. Workingmen objected to this. They wanted to bring about a system of free tax to support elementary education.

It was not easy to make the people understand that education is properly a public necessity and should be supported by taxes.

The demand for education became so great that in all the northern States laws were passed compelling townships, towns, and counties to support free elementary schools. There are many men and women who did much for free schools. They are, Horace Mann, Henry Barnard, De Witt Clinton, Emma Willard, Mary Lyon, Robert Owen, and Francis Wright.

Before the Revolution a new kind of secondary school, the academy, had appeared in many cities. This school taught, English, arithmetic, drawing, and the natural sciences. They were not supported by taxes but they were a little more democratic than the older Latin grammar schools, where a few young men were prepared for college.

In 1820 a demand arose for public high schools to prepare children for the work of life. In 1821 such a school was established in Boston. In 1825 a somewhat similar school was founded in New York. These were the first American public high schools.

The high schools were open to boys who had completed certain studies. The idea of the Public High School spread very slowly. Many people still thought that only such subjects as reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, and history should be taught at public expense. The private academy was still the leading type of secondary school.

Then the colleges began to multiply. Some of the state universities of the South were opened very early in the country's history: North Carolina 1795, Georgia 1801, South Carolina 1804; in the Middle West, Ohio in 1802, and Indiana in 1824 led the way.

The education of girls and women lagged far behind that of boys and men. Later female academies and seminaries began to spring up all over the country.

After the Revolution the growth of the newspaper began to increase. This was a great help in educating the people of the United States. Magazines and books were also a great help in education. The North America Review was the most noted of the early magazines. Some of the great American writers are, Cooper, Irving, Hawthorne, Longfellow, Lowell, and Poe. These men wrote novels and poems and this also was a great help in education.

High schools and colleges supported by taxes began to increase rapidly all over the country. There were also other educational agencies besides schools and colleges, they were public libraries, community centers, magazines, books, and broadcasting. These agencies were a great help to education.

Then the women began to get higher education. Some of the colleges in the East and South began to open their doors to women.

The education and progress in science came. Many of the terrible diseases were checked. The colleges helped very much in this progress.

The magazines and newspapers began to increase still more rapidly. The moving picture theatres helped in educating the people also. The development of education kept on until we have the wonderful school system of today.

SUICIDE VICTIM FOUND ON RANCH NEAR COLMA

A body practically identified as that of John Torcellano, 38, and formerly of Santa Rosa, was found beneath an oak tree on the Joe Lagomarsino ranch near Colma Wednesday. The man had taken his own life by hanging, although the weight of the body had broken the slender line used by him. A turn of the line was knotted tightly around the man's neck and the remainder was hanging over a limb of the tree above him. The tension on the cord had been sufficient to draw it tightly before it broke and he had died of strangulation.

The body was tentatively identified as John Torcellano by means of a letter addressed to that name at a hotel in Santa Rosa. The letter was in Italian and was from Salinas and was signed by the man's sister.

The body was found by Lagomarsino, upon whose ranch the suicide was committed. The body was taken to the funeral parlors of Deputy Coroner Luella Pepper, where an inquest will be held later.

HOLLYWOOD'S FILM SHOP

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 4 (UP) —It seems to Commander James Parker, Jr., of the Navy that whatever he went and told people about life and adventure on the seas some one always suggested that he write a book.

And, after so many years of that sort of thing, Commander Parker sat down and wrote a book. Not just an ordinary book, but one which was adaptable to the movies.

"Seas Beneath" was the title of the officer's work. When John Ford, director for Fox Films, saw the manuscript he persuaded his company to buy it before it ever reached print.

When the picture was finished it appeared to spell the end of Commander Parker's naval life. He immediately was assigned to writing other stories for the talking screen.

Commander Parker said he finds Hollywood "fantastic."

"I find it rather hard to work at top speed here," he said. "It offers so many amusements like golf which I missed during my years on a battleship."

Parker declared that girls he used to "drag" to hops at Annapolis and later people he met at Newport News or in Hongkong, or Pensacola, always saw something romantic in navy life, which the officers seemed to miss.

"Why don't you write a book about this?" was the stock question, which Commander Parker explained every naval officer has heard hundreds of times.

"I finally got around to 'Seas Beneath'," he said. "Now is appears that I am started. My next will be a story based upon actual happings in China where I was stationed for a number of years."

Leicester Wagner, a United Press writer, was rather startled recently when he passed the Filmarte Theatre in Hollywood and saw in electric lights: "The Artists' Sons—a comedy starring the two sons of Rob Wagner, the author."

Investigation revealed that someone had unearthed a picture filmed in 1911, in which Leicester and his brother, Thornton, now a St. Louis aviator, had the featured roles.

The production drew a large newspaper representation to the Filmarte and proved to be a startling revelation of what women wore and young boys looked like 20 years ago.

"That film must not be circulated nationally if I have to petition Will Hayes in person," was Wagner's only comment.

SOUGHT PEN FOR EDUCATION

CINCINNATI, O., (UP)—After having been convicted on a charge of robbing a store, Cecil McGuffey, 18, vigorously objected to a reformatory sentence because he "wanted to go to the big house and learn something." Judge Thomas Morrow accordingly sentenced him to serve from eight to 15 years in the Ohio Penitentiary at Columbus.

PHILADELPHIA, (UP) — The 250th yearly meeting of the Religious Society of Friends was conducted in the same manner as the first meeting held in Burlington, N. Y., just two and a half centuries ago.

State's Infant Mortality Low

Mexican Death Rate Heavy In California Brings Total Higher

By HOMER L. ROBERTS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 24 (UP)—California lived up to her reputation of being a "Paradise for babies" last year by recording the lowest infant mortality rate in the state's history.

This is the report made to Governor Rolph by Dr. Giles S. Porter, state director of public health The new death rate in California, he said, is 58.6 per 1,000 births, as compared with 63.1 in 1929.

Three Mexican babies die for every white child, the report showed. Of 4,945 infants who died in California last year, 1,921, or 39 per cent, were of Mexican parentage. This gave an infant mortality rate for Mexicans of 132.7 as compared with 41.7 for the white race.

A total of 12 infant deaths were recorded during the year for San Mateo county, giving it an infant mortality rate of 51.0, the report said.

Only six other states can show better rates, Dr. Porter said. "These are Iowa, Minesota, Nebraska, Idaho, Washington and Oregon. None of these, however, has the Mexican problem to contend with. In consideration of the fact the motality rate for white children in California was 41.6 in 1930, it would appear that this state may be the best state in the Union for babies to be born."

Pacific coast cities have for many years maintained the lowest infant mortality rates in the United States, and 1930 reports show this enviable record to have been continued. Among these cities are the larger centers of population such San Francisco, Los Angeles, Oakland, San Diego, Sacramento, Long Beach, Pasadena, Berkeley, Stockton, Santa Barbara and San Jose.

In the unincorporated districts of California, Los Angeles county showed an exceptionally low rate of 44.8. Other counties with low rates were: Colusa, 45.9; Glenn, 48.0; Humbolt, 48.1; Marin, 28.3; Merced 48.8; Napa, 48.6 Sacramento, 40.5; Ean Joaquin, 52.5; San Luis Obispo, 37.7; San Mateo, 51.0; Solano, 50.0, and Tehama, 35.5.

WOODSIDE

Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Fleishacker and their daughter, Mrs. Leon Sloss, and Mr. Sloss have opened their homes here for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Sloss are occupying for the first time their new home that was just completed this winter. Mrs. Fleishacker will entertain the San Francisco Garden Club at her home here next month.

Mr. and Mrs Otis Dudley have returned to Woodside after an absence of nearly a year. They have purchased a home in the Glens and Mr. Dudley will return to his position with Neuman Brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wallace Mein will open their home here about May first. Mrs. Mein is now in New York.

The Associated Firemen of San Mateo county held their meeting at Woodside on Tuesday evening. After the business meeting that was held at the Woodside Hall, the delegates were guests of the local firemen at a sumptuous banquet given at the school auditorium.

The Fire Commissioners have contracted for an automatic device for controling the fire signal whistle in place of the hand control that has been in use in the past. This will save several minutes in getting the truck away to a fire. Now the device can be set and the fire truck started out. The signal will ring and be repeated electrically while the truck is on its way.

Seneca Coats was severely injured on Saturday when a delivery truck he was driving skidded and overturned on a curve on the Portola road. He was badly cut and bruised but no bones were broken. The wagon was demolished.

Many of the parents have visited the school this "Public School Week" to see how the teaching methods have changed since they went to school. Thursday was the big day of the week with the ladies of the P.-T. A. entertaining the visitors and a cantata produced by the chidren under the direction of Mrs. Helen Huebner.

The Parent-Teacher Association offers its last card party of the season on Friday evening. A valuable door prize and many prizes for the score winners have been provided.

The high winds of Wednesday and Thursday played hob with the gardens about Woodside as well as with the electric light wires.

Full Lincoln Signature Found

CONCORD, N. H. (UP)—A full signature of Abraham lincoln, rare because he usually signed his name merely "A. Lincoln," has been uncovered here by Otis G. Hammond, director of the New Hampshire Historical Society. The autograph appears on the brigadier-general's commission granted by President Lincoln nearly three-quarters of a century ago to Gilman Marston of Exeter.

BUILDERS OF CALIFORNIA

"hello London California speaking."

IN 1/30 of a second, your voice flashes across continent and ocean. Another modern miracle!

Astounding, too, are these communication facts: This state has more than 6,150,000 miles of transmission lines — in addition to ever-expanding radio facilities. And Californians transmit approximately 7 million telephone calls, telegrams and commercial radio messages daily.

Communication companies in California have invested $413,000,000 and employ some 40,500 workers.

Of these employes, more than 10,000 are Bank of America depositors. And this Bank is privileged to serve the leading telephone, telegraph and commercial radio companies operating in California.

With their far-flung organizations, these companies require exceptional statewide banking facilities. Conservatively managed and charged with great responsibility to government and public, they choose their banking connections with extreme care.

Especially significant, therefore, is the selection of Bank of America by these leaders in public service — and by so many thousands of their employes. Do not these facts suggest the most desirable bank for you?

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute.

Tax Change To Equalize State School Burden

Change Aimed at Uniform Opportunities for All Children

By J. F. McLAUGHLIN

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 24 (UP)—Increased funds for the elementary and high schools of California would be available under an aqualization plan sponsored by tax experts and educational economists of the state.

The equalization plan would provide every school child of the state with a satisfactory educational opportunity and would equalize as far as possible the school tax burdens among districts and counties.

Under the present operative plan of providing funds for schools there are some extremely wealthy districts which without burdening ing themselves can raise by taxation far more money than is needed to pay the costs of a generous educational program.

On the other hand there are districts so lacking in wealth as to be unable by levying the highest taxes permitted by law to provide even the minimum essentials.

The procedure of the plan which would give San Mateo county approximately $246,262 for elementary schools and $116,863 for high schools is as follows:

1. It makes no change in the present method of distributing the state school fund and the state high school fund.

2. It contains a carefully formulated measure of the cost of a "minimum acceptable program" for each school district in the state.

3. It provides for the establishing of a state public school equalization fund.

4. It provides for fixing maximum tax rates which school districts shall not be required to exceed in order to maintain the "minimum accepted program."

5. It provides for apportioning moneys from the state public school equalization fund sufficient in amount to cover the difference between the cost of the "minimum acceptable program" and the amounts received by each school district from present state and county funds plus the proceeds of a local tax equal to rates specified in the plan.

Since its organization five years ago the local Lutheran church has enjoyed steady growth, adding new members every year. During the first year the congregation worshiped in the old Methodist church on Maple street. Since then it has purchased the large corner lot on Jefferson avenue and Clinton street, on the back end of which a parish hall was erected, in which the congregation is worshiping at present, until the church proper will be built on the corner lot, when the present parish hall will be used exclusively for meetings, Sunday school, and entertainments.
